the Union Pacific withdraw its $65.50 round-trip rate from the Missouri river

Senators Jones and Stewart Still Occupy the Floor

AND THE CEASELESS TALK CONTINUES.

The Mormon Church Joint Resolution as Amended by the Senate, Passed by the House-Other Legislation in the House.

SENATE

WASHINGTON, Oct 23—The sixth portion of the still indefinite number of portions to which the legislative day of last Tuesday is to be divided up opened at 10 o'clock this morning, but it was not till twenty minuter pust that senators were numerous enough to constitute a quorum. Republicans were more prompt than democrats

Mr Dayls was the last man to answer As soon as he had done so the vice president laid before the senate the silver purchase repeat act soon as he had done so the vice president laid before the senate the silver purchase ropeal act.

Mr Stowart gave notice of an amendment which he intended to offer proposing a conference, to he held in Washington within nine months, between delegates of the United States. Central and South America, Hayti and San Domingo, for the adoption of a common silver coin to be legal touder in all commercial transactions between the citizens of the countries represented in the conference. The house joint resolution for the printing of $1,000 copies of the bearings before the committee on ways and means was agreed to, with an amendment making the number of 600—2,000 for the house and 2,000 for the senate.

Mr Jones (Nev) took the floor, and continued his speech against the bull, taking it up at the point where he left off on Saturday. The section of the speech delivered by him today attracted very little attention in the senate chamber in contradiction to that which had been given to the lirst three sections of it. This was parily owing to the fact that he confined himself closely to his type written speech and was not interrupted by questions, and partly to the fact that senators were thinking more of the pending compromise and of the effect upon it of the president's opposition than they were thinking of any arguments for or agulast the pending of my arguments for or agulast the pending hill. After he had been speaking two hours and a half Mr Jones pleaded that he was thred and said that he would like to continue his speech at some other time. No objection was made and after a call of the senate to which forty-seven senators responded, Mr. Teller took the floor and preceeded with an argument against the bill which he had begun some time against the bill which he had begun some time against the bill which he had begun some time against the bill which he had begun some time against the bill which he had begun some time against the bill which he had begun some time against the bill which he had begun some time against the b

Mr. Stewart took the floor at 3.15 and an dressed the senate in favor of his amendment for a Pan American monetary conference. In the course of Mr. Stewart speech a question was asked him or a suggestion made to him by Mr. Dolph. 'That gives me a fresh idea," suid Mr. Stewart. 'and now I will tell you all about it.

'Oh, don't "said Mr Dolph, imploringly, "I will withdraw it." [Laughter] "Oh, no l'object to your withdrawing it." said Mr Stewart. "I want to talk upon that point. And he diverged from the line of his remarks and went on to reply to Mr Dolph, Considerable discussion followed the point of order that a bill reported under a call of committees which had previously been considered during two morning hours could not be again reported, but must go upon the calendar as unfinished business. There being no precedent upon which to base a decision, the chair took the matter under advisement.

The Oates bill to establish a uniform system of bankrupcy throughout the United States was taken up, and Mr. Oates spoke in explanation of the measure. He did not think it more discreditable for a debtor to be sued in a court of bankrupty than in any other. The theory of bankrupty legislation religinated with the Romans. The property of the bankrupt cannot be soized, under the provisions of this bill, unless the potitioner makes affidavit that the debtor is preparing to wrongfully dispose of it. Humanity appeas led for legislation which would enable a poor debtor, after he had honorably surrendered his property for the benefit of his creditors, to be discharged from his liabilities. Failure to pay commercial paper after the expiration of thirty days is not sufficient to force a debtor into involuntary bankruptcy unless it he proved that he is also insolvent. The hill is not intended to be a machine for the collection of debts, but a means by which the poor debtor may be protected and the creditors secured against a rescally traud. At the conclusion of his remarks made.

Mr. W A Stone followed in opposition to the bill. He said the provisions of this measure were more severe against involuntary benkrupts than the act of 1887. The chief objection to that act was its severity. The penal provisions of the proposed act were unreasonably hard. The country had not reached a stage when a universal bankruptey act could be maintained. Among the people generally such legislation was unpopular if such a law should have been in force during the recent financial deptession, the auctioneer's red flag would have been displayed on overy side throughout the country. He had read letters from Judge Smith, Dean and Williams of the supreme court of Pennsylvania, avguing against the enaction be made in the military expenses. He protests against the imposition of any fresh taxation, holding that the tax-payers are now burdened to the limit of their strength.

peal Men Secured Under a Misrepresentation - Carlisle Opposed

WASSINGTON, Oct. 23.-The Wash

Washingtov, Oct. 23.—The Washington correspondent of the Louisville Courier-Journal to-night sent the following special dispatch to that paper for publication to-morrow morning:

"The compromise patched up by the conference or steering committee on the democratic side of the senate is as dead as a door-nail Mr. Cleveland and Secretary Carlisle killed at this morning by stating emphatically that they would have nothing to do with it. Senators Lindsay, Palmer, Smith (of New Jersey), Gordon, Gray, White and Camden known as warm friends of the administration, refused friends of the administration, refused to be parties to the compromise when they were informed that it did not to be parties to the compromise when they were informed that it did not meet with the wishes of the president. It seems that these gentlemen signed the compromise paper under a misapprehension. They say that they were led to believe when they attached their signatures to the document that the plan met with the full approval of the president and the secretary of the treasury.

president and the secretary of the treasury.

"The Couriet Journal correspondent asked Senator Lindsay to-day how he came to sign the paper since he was well known to be a staunch supporter of the administration in its fight for unconditional repeat. He replied: "Of course I should not have put my name to the letter if I had not believed it to be, if not agreeable, at least to be, if not agreeable, at leas not objectionable to the administ

—A Mrs. Pederson traveled all the way from Beloit, Wis, to Indianapolis to notify Mr. Harrison that he is to be the next president, but that demons and evil forces are at work to defeat that end, these facts having been revealed to her in a dream.

—The Illinois Central yesterday gave a free excursion to a train load of boys and girls from the Normal (III). Soldiers' Crphans' home to the World's fair at Chicago. They and in this way reconcile democratic differences. How such a misunder-standing could have occurred among the friends of the administration perplexes me as it does a number of senators or our side, but I shall not undertake to solve the mystery. Suffi-cient for me to know, and I only know it from the public press, that the administration is against the compromise and that without democratic harmony at both ends of the avenue no ompromise can succeed.

If the reported administration opposition is indeed a fact, and I have no doubt that it is, I shall have to accept the situation. I stand where I have always stood in favor of the un-conditional repeal of the Sherman act, and to accomplish that end I will vote for a cloture rule in the senate if the pportunity is afforded me.'

"The foregoing from Senator Lind-say is the explanation given by all the administration senators who attached their names to the compromise. There is not anybody here who seems to un-derstand just how the compromise came about. All the gentlemen who signed it firmly and fully believed that the president and secretary of the treasury knew all about and favored it.
"Now, to the absolute and personal knowledge of the Courier-Journal corespondent, the secretary of the treas respondent, the secretary of the treasury knew nothing about it until nearly 10 o'clock p. m. Saturday. It happened that just a few minutes before that hour the Courier-Journal correspondent asked Secretary Carlisle if there was any change in the financial situa-tion upon the part of the administra-tion, and he replied: No, sir. The administration stands to day where it has stood all along—on the line of the president's message calling congress together in favor of the unconditional epeal of the Sherman act. "As I turned to leave the room I met Senator Vilas, who had called to see the secretary. Senator Vilas, as I have since been informed, came to apprise the secretary of the compromise paper being circulated. The secretary told Senator Vilas that he knew nothing about it, never saw it and, so far as he was concerned, it did not meet with his approval. The news was of such importance that the secretary hought it advisable to communicat thought it advisable to communicate its purport at once to the president, who on that day was not at the White House but at Woodlawn. When the information was imparted to the president he promptly repudiated the whole scheme so far as he was concerned, saying that the proposed compromise did not meet with his approval and if the senate should pass it, the house ought to reject it."

SNAKE CHARMING. Talk About the Art and Its Dangers b a Professional.

"Snake charming has become a com-non thing nowadays," said a profes-ional snake handler the other day after reading the account of "Dot" Sonwell's mishap, "and the danger about the work is just sufficient to at truct some people. Yes, there is always danger unless the poisonous fangs are extracted. It is almost impossible to charm, or rather drug, some species of snakes so that they can always be lepended upon They are a treacherous et, and more so when they have the coisonous fangs in their mouth. They know right away when their fangs have been extracted. They seem to lose their pride and ferocity and they will try to sneak away rather than to offer deflance. I have known the fierces amond-back ever brought from Flor da coil down as tame as a lamb wh its poison faig was taken out. Most tis poison faig was taken out. Most of the snakes handled by charmers on the stage are harmless so far as poisoning any one is concerned. It should be a crime, too, to let those with the faigs

What are the secrets of snake charming? O, well, they are simple-simpler than most people imagine. In the first place the snake to be handled s gorged with food so that it is sleepy and drowsy. Then it is ether-drugged so that its senses are dazed and quict Sometimes they are put in boxes con-taining ice and the cold puts them in a semi-torpid condition. In either case the snake is very gentle and only half n the possession of its senses. Then he snake charmer uses certain motions a handling the reptile, and by dust of dexterity and strength the snake sed from hand to hand and allowed to coil its slimy length over arms, legs and body. The exhibitor, however, must be constantly on the alert When the snake becomes too lively it is time to place it in the box. The hand must always grasp it at certain places where the head can be guided and held from the body This is the hardest thing the charmer has to learn, but it comes with practice. In handling a reptile with the poisonous fangs in, one must be strong and in perfect health. Any nervousness or temerity might cost him his life. The grasp and movements must be precise and accurate. There is no room for had accurate. There is no toom for hesitancy or uncertainty, and the strain of one's system during the per-formance is great. The charmer is really toying with death—and death in one of its most hourible forms."— Philadelphia Times.
